FOR YOUR MEAL

Topic: Leading begins with the attitude of a servant leader. This attitude as described by Robert Greenleaf, is to serve first, and out of service we are given honor to lead. It is a way of BEING in a relationship with others--- a very personal and inward journey. It is a moral contract between leaders and followers to bring out the best in each other for the good of the whole. Whether the leader of the group or a participant in a group, we are responsible to make each person function to the best of his or her abilities.

Deane Finnegan is the President/CEO of Leadership Lincoln. She has been with the agency since 1991. Prior to joining Leadership Lincoln, she served as a Mayoral Aide for two of Lincoln's Mayors. While serving in City Government she learned the positive difference a committed and well-informed group of citizens could make in bettering a community. Deane also served as Executive Director of the Nebraska Democratic Party from 1991-1995, where she was privileged to learn firsthand about leadership from former Governor Frank Morrison and U.S. Senators Jim Exon, Bob Kerry, and Ben Nelson.
