SANDHILL CRANE TRIP

One of the world's greatest migrations converges right here in Nebraska. For thousands of years Sandhill cranes have used the central Platte River valley for their stopover grounds on their way to breeding grounds in the north.

Witness these spectacular birds as they forage in fields along country roads, perform their dances, and fly above us on our way to the Ian Nicolson Audubon Center at Rowe Sanctuary in Gibbon, Nebraska. Stops will include a visit to the Crane Trust Nature and Visitor Center and dinner at Burchell's White Hill Farmhouse. At Rowe Sanctuary we will hear a short presentation on cranes and make our way to a private viewing blind along the Platte River. As we watch the sunset, we'll listen to thousands of cranes and observe them as they gather on the river for the night.

Included in this remarkable experience is transportation, dinner, and cost of the blind. (The blind reservation fee is nonrefundable if the trip is cancelled.) Participants must have the ability to walk uneven trails in low light. Vans will depart from Auld Pavilion in Antelope Park. Space is limited. Register by February 9.
